

I, as a consumer, do not believe that it is in my best intrests for banks to be contacted against my express request for the purposes of solitication of business. I signed up for the No Call List of the state of indiana because I was tired of being harassed day and nite by people trying to sell me things that I had no desire to buy. I value the little time that I have at home. For you to allow the protection that I currently have under Indiana state law is unacceptable and smacks strongly of the erosion of my civil liberties. Had I wanted to be called by banks or any one, I would have not signed for the No Call list. Do not do the consumers of Indiana a huge disservice by allowing these people to erode my valuable time at home.
